Becoming an effective Team Player/Leader:

Top leadership traits include honesty, integrity, charisma, and hard work. But to really lead in the 21st century you must include enthusiasm and humor to be a truly effective and motivational team player.

1. The improv exercises are designed to nurture right brain thinking which helps with innovation, humor, and "big picture" orientation.
2. The exercises have been researched and tested to get the most humor from employees with very little angst.
3. The workshop helps employees bond and develop an honesty and trust factor that is crucial for creative success and divergent thinking.

Business Improv Testimonials

"The session was the best 1-hour workplace breakout-style training session I've ever experienced". - Jason Hassing, Manager IT, Compass Group

"I have had several folks tell me that was the best thing we have ever done with this group. I noticed many principals taking notes so they can use the activities with their faculties". - Dr. Chuck Epps, Superintendent at Fort Mill Schools

"We are still talking about your program a year later". - Jody Christenson, WIM Early Talent Program Coordinator, Wells Fargo
